Dear Mr. Barker:

Welcome back to Washington.

At the request of the Director I have arranged a schedule for you for tomorrow, which is attached.

Mr. Dulles is particularly interested in getting your views on the career service program, especially what we have developed in the way of career incentives. Mr. Stewart and [redacted] will tell you about this. [redacted] whom you met during your last visit, has [redacted] STAT a brief report on language training. Mr. Robert Amory, the Agency's Deputy Director for Intelligence, who was away at the time of your last visit, has set aside an hour to discuss the work of his area with you.

Another problem which concerns us is the manner in which our personnel identify themselves to outsiders, and the degree to which employees are permitted to engage in outside activities. These subjects will be covered by Colonel Edwards, and Messrs. [redacted] and [redacted] STAT

In the event this program leaves you any free time, I have set aside some documents that might interest you.

A car will call for you at the Dupont Plaza Hotel at 0845, 17 May, to bring you to the Administration Building.

I am looking forward to seeing you again.

Sincerely yours,

S/

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: DCI Discussion with Mr. James M. Barker

1. On 16 February 1957 the DCI gave a talk at an M.I.T. alumni dinner in Chicago arranged by Mr James M. Barker. During the course of their conversation Mr. Barker expressed several views of interest to the DCI.

2. Mr. Barker pointed out that in many countries there are no word symbols for a lot of our ordinary concepts. For example, in Turkey the word for "education" is the same as that for "drill" and there is no word for "maintenance". He believes we should analyze the language formation before starting any aid or propaganda effort. Why exclude ourselves that we can convey ideas if there is no symbol for these ideas in the minds of the people. (He recommends "The Dawn of Conscience" by Brasted.)

3. In learning languages Mr. Barker apparently puts great faith in the Carl Seashore test developed by a Professor at the University of Iowa and used by the Juilliard School of Music to test the intrinsic ability of an individual to understand tone. He points out that some individuals learn with the mind and some learn with the ear, and strongly recommends screening out by tests those who have aptitude and those who have genius.

Mr. Barker is also interested in instruction in how to read.

4. The DCI asked Mr. Barker to come to Washington to see the Agency, hear about some of the things we are doing in the language development field, and in research, and let us have the benefit of his views.

Dear Allen:

The two historical works were waiting for me when I arrived this morning, and I am (no, we are) delighted to have them, and with your superscription, which is particularly appreciated. I dipped into the "Underground" for a moment after dinner, and am both thrilled and fascinated. As for the "Boer War" - that is a remarkable intellectual "tours de force" for an eight-year old, and especially with the family sympathy on the other side. The two books shall have honored and adjacent places on my library shelves. Thank you very much!

You and your associates gave me much food for thought in an eventful day. I shall be in communication with you in the course of a week or ten days.

Sincerely,

/s/ Jim
